

All Health Savings Account (HSA) Certificates of Deposit must have a corresponding HSA Checking account. The opening deposit and any subsequent deposits/withdrawals must flow through the HSA Checking account. HSA CDs comply with federal laws and guidelines. It is the responsibility of the account holder to keep a record of deposits so that annual contribution limits are not exceeded and to substantiate that withdrawals are used for qualified medical expenses.

Qualifications to Open an HSA	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> You must have insurance coverage under a qualified high-deductible health plan (HDHP) that is HSA compatible. If the policy has co-pays, it is not an HDHP. You cannot have any other first-dollar medical coverage. Supplemental insurance is permitted. You cannot be enrolled in Medicare. You cannot be claimed as a dependent on someone else's tax return.
Qualified Medical Expenses	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> You may use the money in the account to pay for any qualified medical expense permitted under federal law (see IRS Publication 502) such as medical care and services, dental care, vision care, over-the-counter medications (only with a doctor's prescription). You may use the money in the account to pay for your own medical expenses, or those for your spouse and dependent children. You can pay for expenses of your spouse and dependents even if they are not covered under the HDHP. It is your responsibility to document that withdrawals made from your HSA are for qualified medical expenses.
Contributions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Maximum contribution is $3,600 for 2021 if you have self-only coverage. Maximum contribution is $7,200 for 2021 if you have family coverage. You can also make a catch-up contribution of $1,000 to your own HSA if you are age 55 and older. Your spouse is not permitted to make their catch-up contribution into your HSA. You may contribute the maximum amount to your HSA regardless of the month you become eligible. However, you must stay in the plan 12 months following the last month of the year of the first year of eligibility. It is your responsibility to keep a record of deposits to ensure you don't exceed the annual contribution limit.
